75,000 NU graduates get certificates

Nearly 75,000 graduates of National University, who passed the degree examination last year, are getting certificates from their respective colleges, reports BSS.

The university authorities have already sent the certificates to the respective colleges and thus fulfilled one of the major objectives of the university, a university Press said on Tuesday.

This is for the first in the country that the graduates of a university are getting certificates from their colleges, the release said.

Earlier, students or their guardians or their teachers had to collect certificates from the university spending huge amount of money and time, the release added.
