English I Pro

EDUCATION is the only force that can raise a nation from bottom to top. In our country every year a large number of students cut a sorry figure because of failure in English. There are many causes why most of the students in our country fail in English.

English language is taught in our country from the Primary level to Universities, either as an optional or as a compulsory subject. In the last H.S.C. Examination as 16346 Examinees were expelled on charge of copying and adopting unfair means during the many as English 1st and 2nd paper examination. The figure is very shocking and proves how weak our students are in English even though it is a compulsory subject from class one to higher secondary level. Undoubtedly English still remains a nightmare for our students. They read English as if it were a medicine and think it will do good for them. Every year we are used to seeing 50/60 per cent of the students turning unsuccessful in SSC and HSC examinations. We found English is the major cause behind this dismal condition. Either student fail in English or become unsuccessful in other subjects they have to give a lot of time and effort behind English. If teachers lack teaching skills, students will not learn a subject properly. Naturally therefore they will adopt to pass examinations.

Now a days we are to think internationally. A large number of students who fail in the examination, are compelled to come out of their families and engage themselves in undesirable and antisocial activities. It may be mentioned here in 1992 the National University Act was passed with the objective of providing affiliation to colleges and training to teachers. The Act has been revised in 1997 but no mention is there about how good or bad it has performed.

On the other hand, our education system is examination based and not knowledge based. Our Universities and colleges should be reverted back to knowledge based education.

There are basic weaknesses in our education system, starting from primary school level university level. So it is important that we should learn how to communicate in English as it is regarded as an international language. English is so important but it is a matter of regret that a large number of students fail in English.
