Varsity Teachers Training

Sir,

I am currently studying in one of the departments of Dhaka University and about to complete my study. Recently I have found that there is no place for any of the Bangladeshi universities in the list of top 50 universities of Asia published in Asia Week Magazine. It has shocked me very much. It indicates that standard of university education in our country is degrading. There are many reasons for this downturn.

To my mind, one of the principal reasons is the declining standard of teacher. These are a good number of teachers who do not have the quality to present the topic he teaches. Even doctorate degree holder teachers are often found to pronounce common English words incorrectly. So the cause of declining standard of education does not only lie with the students. It also lies with the teachers who come through the same educational system a student does in his preuniversity level education. So I earnestly suggest to the concerned authorities to set up an educational training institute for university teachers along with upgrading the overall educational system that exists in our country at present keeping consistency with the demand for education of the present day world. We should keep in mind that introduction of four year honours course will not ameliorate the situation in the long run. So we have to remove the causes of the declining standard of education.
