ICMAB VS CMA

Sir.

ICMAB means Institute of Cost And Management Accountants of Bangladesh and CMA means Cost And Management Accountants. So, it is evident from the full meaning of abbreviations the difference between ICMAB and CMA. The former is the name of an organisation and the latter the name of the education course which is conducted by the Institute of Cost And Management Accountants of Bangladesh under the direct control and supervision of this institute CMA examinations of each stage and group are held twice in a year.

There is only one institute in our Country to make professional Cost and Management Accountants. So, this institute is all-in all the field of Cost and Management Accountancy. In my opinion any examination held of the course CMA under the direct auspices of ICMAB should be named CMA examination. But the authority writes the name of the Institute at the top of question papers like The Institute Of Cost And Management Accountants Of Bangladesh.

I think that the name of an Institute and the name of the course which is conducted by the institute are not the same. Concerned students with a specific course only pass the course, and not the institute. Moreover, those who pass the CMA Course would be called CMA like C.A. instead of ICMA. So, in this regard I draw the notice of the concerned authority to rectify.

D.U. Exams:

Sir.

Due to various political and internal problems the dates of the Dhaka University examinations are invariably postponed or cancelled. This causes undue hardship to the students. Obviously the general public think that the university is not a place fit for serious study.

The session jams which are mainly caused by the postponement of the examinations, can surely be avoided by holding the exams during the unscheduled closures. I am confident that the students would not object to this proposal.

I would request the administration to seriously consider this suggestion and help solve one of the major problems of the university.
