

Govt affiliates Stamford with private varsity

Staff Correspondent

Stamford University Bangladesh got government affiliation as a private university.

Stamford College group started its academic programmes in Bangladesh in 1994 as a franchise campus of the world famous Stamford University and College group. For the last seven years, it has been conducting programme on BBA, MBA, B.Sc. in Computer Science and Engineering and B.Sc. in Computer Information System under different recognised foreign universities.

About 300 students are now working with different national, multinational establishment after receiving graduation and MBA degree from this university. Some 70 students are studying in different foreign universities through credit transfer and some of them have already come out, says a Press release.

Some 900 students are now studying in different programmes of the Stamford University Bangladesh.