Chittagong University campus.
Students of Chittagong College boycotted classes today at the call of the city unit of ICS protesting violence on the university campus and demanding reopening of classes.

The situation in the university remained unchanged as the armed persons who made illegal entry into Alao Hall on January 6 and opened fire causing injuries to two workers did not vacate the hall despite efforts by the Proctor and the Provost of the hall to persuade them to leave the campus.

When contacted, Vice-Chancellor Prof Mohammad Ali told the Times that no untoward incident occurred in the university today. But some armed occupants roamed about the campus by jeeps, he said and added that the Syndicate would sit tomorrow to discuss the situation after submission of the report of the Proctor and the Provost who were entrusted with the responsibility of holding talks with the occupants to make them vacate the hall.

A spokesman of Chittagong University Teachers Association (CUTA), on the other hand said teachers went to the university campus today and found that normalcy was prevailing there. He said about 600 students had come back to the halls and offices of the university except the office of the Vice-Chancellor functioned normally. He alleged that the Vice-Chancellor had kept the university closed on the false plea of terrorism only to re-establish those people on the campus who were involved in the commission of violence during the last one year." He said teachers also talked to the Pro-Vice-Chancellor and put forward their demand for reopening the university.

Police said the university campus was still under the control of armed occupants and they were awaiting permission from the university authority to intervene.
