Mass education must for existence, Biswas tells teachers team

President Abdur Rahman Biswas Tuesday stressed the need for a long term perspective planning to develop the country's enormous natural and human resources, reports UNB. "Proper planning and efficient management will surely change the fate of the people," said the President while talking to a 37-member delegation of the Bangladesh Non-government Primary School Teachers' Association when they called on him at Bangabhaban.

Terming the mass education a must for our existence and national development, President Biswas said Primary Education should be given topmost priority as the basis of higher education.

"Education opens up new horizons and widens mental make-up for initiating bright career," the President observed.

He also expressed his satisfaction over the development of primary education in the country and said the process is continuing to accommodate more primary schools under government management.

Earlier, the members of the delegation, led by its acting President Shamsul Alam, submitted a memorandum to the President comprising with the problems of the non-government Primary Teachers.
