Most teachers not taking classes properly

Saifur annoyed with lapses in edn sector

Finance Minister Saifur Rahman Thursday criticised administrative lapses in education sector, saying the nation is not getting the return of investments made in this sector due to its weak administration, reports UNB.

"Education administration is the weakest, for which we are not getting proper return of our money we invested in the sector," he said while addressing a seminar here this afternoon.

Citing his home district Sylhet as an example, the Minister said he found most teachers not taking classes properly. He also hardly found the education officers in their place during the last three years.

"If the situation is not improved, we will not get the return of the huge investment we're making in the sector," Rahman told the seminar on "The Problems and Prospects of Primary Education in Bangladesh" at Jatiya Press Club.

Bangladesh Literacy Society (BLS) organised the seminar where its Secretary General Prof Mohammad Osman Ghani presented the key-note paper containing 29 recommendations for removing existing
