that about a dozen of meritorious students had laid down their valuable lives here at the altar of terrorism, in the past few years. So, the pre-condition of all steps will be to uproot the campus terrorism at first," the Vice-Chancellor observed.

Prof. Miah pointed out that the university authorities had so far tried to minimise the unrest by keeping the university closed for a certain period. As a result, terrorism had only changed its course but had never been ended. "The unscheduled closure only complicated the session jams" he added.

Meantime, the Vice-Chancellor said, almost all the buildings of the university has become unusable transportation of the students and teachers was scanty, sixty per cent of the teachers had no housing facility inside the campus, standard of living and food at the dining halls was very poor. The university area was almost in total darkness at night and educational equipment for class rooms, laboratories and libraries were also very poor, Prof. Moniruzzaman Miah observed.

Prof. Miah called upon all conscious people of the country to save the university from all crisis and worsening of the environment.
