The newly appointed vice-chancellor of Chittagong University, Professor Mohammad Al-Forkan, held a series of courtesy meetings on Monday, emphasising the central role of faculty in elevating the institution's academic standing.

During a formal exchange with the White Panel, a pro-Bangladesh Nationalist Party teachers' alliance, Professor Al-Forkan called on educators to prioritise research and secure new development projects, said a press release on Tuesday.

The meeting, coordinated by acting convener Professor Shahadat Hossain and acting joint convener Professor Md Akhter Hossain, featured a large delegation of senior faculty members.

The day also saw a high-profile visit from professor emeritus and former CU vice-chancellor Alamgir Mohammad Sirajuddin.

Throughout the morning, the vice-chancellor's office hosted representatives from various departments, including history and statistics, as well as the ICT cell, student associations, and the CU Officers' Association.

Leaders from various social and cultural organisations also attended to exchange views on the university's future administrative and academic direction.
