3-day IT fest to begin at Notre Dame College tomorrow

Staff Correspondent  06 May, 2026, 01:14

A three-day IT festival organised by the Notre Dame Information Technology Club is set to begin on Thursday at the Notre Dame College Dhaka campus in Dhaka.

The event, INIT 6.0, will be held from May 7 to 9, transforming the campus into a dynamic tech arena where students from across the country will compete in various technology-based competitions.

According to a press release, the festival aims to bring together students driven by innovation, creativity, and problem-solving skills, offering them a platform to demonstrate their abilities and gain recognition.

It said that INIT has evolved into a national tech gathering where ideas move from concept to execution, with participants engaging in intense competition under time-bound challenges.

This year's edition will feature more than 30 segments, including Olympiads, programming contests, robotics competitions, content creation, project showcases, photography, and gaming. Special attractions include events such as Cicada 3301, Tech Quiz, Type Racing, and Ideacon.

The Solo Pass, priced at Tk 150, will grant access to six segments—IT Olympiad, Robotics Olympiad, Google It, Marvel DC Quiz, Anime Quiz, and '404! Question Not Found'—along with gifts and refreshments.

Organisers said that as the festival approaches, enthusiasm among participants is growing, with students intensifying preparations, refining strategies, and strengthening teamwork.

They added that INIT 6.0 is expected to create a vibrant atmosphere on campus, where preparation, creativity, and performance will define outcomes over the three-day event.
