Staff Correspondent 09 May, 2026, 04:57

Gazipur Agricultural University has secured the 23rd position globally in the Financial Impact-Driven Technology Transfer category of the World University Rankings for Innovation 2026, marking a significant milestone in its international academic and research profile.

The university has also been placed among the world's top 500 innovative universities, ranking 470th overall and remains the only public university from Bangladesh to achieve this distinction, said a press release on Friday.

The rankings, published on WURI's official website on Thursday, evaluated universities across 24 categories based on three core criteria, innovativeness, implementability and impact.

Reacting to the achievement, GAU vice-chancellor Professor GKM Mustafizur Rahman said that the recognition reflected the collective effort of the university community.

'This achievement is not GAU's alone, it reflects the potential of Bangladesh,' he said, adding, 'Despite limited resources and many challenges, our teachers, students, researchers and staff have continued to pursue excellence and the world has recognised that effort.'

Mentioning that the university's focus remains on linking research with real-world impact, the VC said, 'Our goal is to ensure that research contributes to national development and helps address global challenges. This international recognition will further strengthen that journey.'
