The department of chemistry of Dhaka University and the DU Nanotechnology Centre jointly held a dissemination workshop at the seminar room of the DU Mukarram Hussain Khundker Bigyan Bhaban on Thursday.

The results of research on nanotechnology were also presented at the workshop titled Double Salt Ionic Liquids as Templates for Synthesis of Cobalt Ferrite Nanoparticles as Efficient Electrocatalysts for Oxygen Evolution Reaction, said a press release.

DU pro-vice-chancellor, academic, was present as chief guest at the workshop, which was organised with the funding of the University Grants Commission of Bangladesh.

Chaired by Professor Farida Begum, chairperson of the department of chemistry of Dhaka University and director of the Nanotechnology Centre, Professor Md Mofazzal Hossain, dean of the faculty of science, spoke as special guest at the workshop.

Professor Md Abu Bin Hasan Susan, principal investigator of the joint research project of DU andUGC delivered a speech titled Ionic Liquids—Neoteric Medium for Development of Nanomaterial.

Stressing on the importance of reaching the benefits of research to the common people, Professor Abdus Salam said that dissemination workshops can play an important role in this regard.

He said that quality publications and regular citations should be updated to elevate the position of Dhaka University in international rankings to a respectable level.

The pro-VC called on the teachers to upload research information on the university website regularly.
