Islamic Studies compulsory in SSC exams

The Government has decided to include Islamic Studies (Diniat) as a compulsory subject for the Secondary School Certificate examinations from 1991, an official announcement said on Sunday, reports BSS.

A Press release of the National Education and Curriculum Board said this would be applicable to the students who would be in class-IX from 1989 onwards.

It said because of the restructuring of the curriculum, the total 1000 marks of the examination would be divided as follows: 700 marks for five compulsory subjects, 200 marks in one paper of the first part of elective subjects and 100 marks in second part.
