Interim education policy

The Hon'ble Prime Minister Shah Azizur Rahman has recently announced the government's decision to implement the Interim Education Policy Recommendations soon. This is undoubtedly a very sincere and bold step towards improving the long-neglected Education of the country. We believe, implementation of the Recommendations of the Education Policy made by the National Education Advisory Council should bring a major change in the whole education system.

The present system of Education, which is colonial in nature, and which is again beset with hundreds of problems, do not serve well the purpose of education. To stop deterioration in the standard of Education and to improve it, the Governments of our country in the past were only found to have taken measures like constituting Education Commissions to suggest ways and means. They have never tried to implement the measures. We have observed, all the commissions' Reports. Recommendations submitted have been shelved. So, the implementation of the National Education Policy is the first ever taken major step to remedy many problems in the Education sector.

But the success of the implementation of the Education Policy and achievement of desired objectives depended very much upon the government's success in weeding out corruption, nepotism, favouritism and other irregularities from Educational Administration. So we feel that steps to free Education from all these should simultaneously be taken. Otherwise, the implementation of Education Policy shall not produce the desired results.
