Forty teachers of the Dhaka University hailed the bold steps taken by the government in containing terrorism in the country.

In a joint statement to the press on Tuesday they said that terrorism had virtually turned into a national disease and its depth and width had threatened the very existence of the newly-established democratic system and the elected government.

They said that the people including the teachers of the Dhaka University had raised their voice against terrorism and demanded stern government steps to curb the activities of the mischiefmongers.
