Cultural show held at BAU

BAU Correspondent

A CULTURAL programme promoting awareness of veterinary education was held at the Shilpacharya Zainul Abedin auditorium of Bangladesh Agricultural University in Mymensingh on Saturday.

The event, organised by Bangladesh Society for Veterinary Education and Research, was part of a two-day annual scientific conference on 'Emerging and re-emerging parasitic diseases of zoonotic importance.'

There were talks as well as performances including music, dance, recitation and a stage drama highlighting the importance of veterinary education both for the sake of animals and the human beings.

All the performers were teachers and students of the veterinary faculty of BAU.

Prior to the cultural programme, there was a short discussion session presided over by Dr Mahmudul Hasan Shikdar, member secretary of the event organising committee.

Among others, professor Dr Md Abdus Samad, dean of the veterinary faculty, prof Dr Md Rafiqul Islam, president of BSVER, professor Dr Md Musharraf Uddin Bhuiyan, general secretary of BSVER, and professor Dr Mirza Abul Hashem, chairman of the event organising committee, were present on the occasion.

An audience of nearly 3,000 people enjoyed the performances.
