

Week-long training on research begins at DU

A week-long training course on 'research-system', organised by Centre for Advanced Research in Humanities (CARH) of Dhaka University, began on Saturday, reports BSS.

Renowned educationist Prof Anisuzzaman inaugurated the training course while Prof Aminul Islam chaired.

A total of 65 researchers are participating in the training course, said a DU press release.

Dean of the Faculty of Arts Prof Sadrul Amin and ACRH Director and professor of the Department of World Religious Theory of the University Quazi Nurul Islam spoke on the occasion.

Speaking on the occasion, the participants said the future of Bangladesh depends on research being carried out by researchers of the present generation.

Professor of Institute of Modern Languages Dr Musa Ansari, Prof of the Department of Accounting Shanti Narayan Gosh and Professor of the Department of Bengali Dr Ahmed Kabir delivered their speeches on 'correct spelling of research', 'definition of research' and 'selection of subject of research'.

A total of 27 professors will deliver lectures respectively on the topics of the training course.

Vice Chancellor of Dhaka University Prof SMA Faiz is expected to distribute certificates among the participants on June 19.
