As part of the series of celebrations to mark the 30th founding anniversary, the Asian University of Bangladesh organised a two-day the 3rd International Conference on Higher Education and Sustainable Development concluded in Dhaka on Saturday, said a press release.

The conference was held at a hotel in Dhaka and on AUB's permanent campus in Ashulia.

Minister of higher education of Malaysia, Zambry Abdul Kadir, attended as chief guest while Bangla Academy president Professor Abul Quasem Fazlul Huq was present as a special guest at the conference.

The keynote paper was presented by Professor Abul Hasan Muhammad Sadeq, founder vice-chancellor of AUB and chairman of the board of trustees.

The conference was presided over by Professor Mosharraf Hossain Bhuiyan, acting vice-chancellor of AUB, while the inaugural address was delivered by the chief adviser of the conference Mohammad Zafar Sadeq.

In his speech, Zambry Abdul Kadir said that Professor Sadeq and Asian University of Bangladesh were well-known to him, and their contribution to Bangladesh's education sector would be remembered for generations.

He expressed his hope for the sustainable expansion and success of higher education worldwide and extended a cordial invitation to AUB stakeholders to Malaysia.

The AUB is conducting its academic activities with world-class syllabi and curricula in alignment with global standards, stated Professor Abul Hasan Muhammad Sadeq, emphasising that the university was committed to quality education, contemporary research and achieving sustainable development goals through the development of skilled human resources.

Over the past 30 years, AUB has produced competent graduates enriched with knowledge and ethical values, a tradition that will continue in the future, he noted, adding, 'AUB is continuously aligning its curricula with labour market demands to ensure graduates can make sustainable and effective contributions in their professional fields.'

Professor Abul Quasem Fazlul Huq remarked that universities must move beyond being degree-oriented institutions and instead focus on innovative research and improved teaching methodologies to enhance knowledge creation through research.

Professor Mosharraf Hossain Bhuiyan expressed his sincere gratitude to all participants and contributors.
